ALBERTO RAMOS

PERSONAL PROFILE

During my Bachelor's and Master's, I developed a special interest in front-end development and game design and development - which I consider to be my main strengths within the field of Computer Science. I currently work as a Junior Fullstack Engineer which led to great professional and personal growth over these past months. From learning new technologies, applying good engineering practices, and developing my soft skills — I believe that a Fullstack position in these early stages of my career has been extremely fulfilling.

I consider myself ambitious and hardworking, and always do my best when presented with a challenge. I'm constantly searching for ways to grow and acquire new knowledge, so I can improve my skillset and fulfill my desire for both personal and professional success.
